“Church Re-imagined” Excerpts from 1 Corinthians and Revelation.

Today, we’re dropping the title Sermon itself: “Church Re-Imagined” invites us to see the church the way God sees it in letters to the Corinthians and the book of Revelation—a multi-ethnic, multi-lingual, deeply unified people formed not by preference but by the Spirit. While today many join or leave churches for personal comfort or convenience, the first-century church flourished because they believed their identity was received from God, they put the mission above their preferences, and they embraced diversity as a gift rather than a barrier. As we re-imagine Saturn Road, we’re called to become the kind of church that looks like heaven itself: a sacrificial, united, mission-driven family where language, culture, ethnicity, and background are not obstacles but testimonies to the power of the Gospel.
